

I was recently informed that the FCC is considering a proposal that would lessen Indiana's Telephone Privacy law protections. I urge you to NOT alter these protections. Since these Telephone Privacy laws in Indiana were put into effect, I have been most pleased with the result. I no longer have to unplug my phone before going to bed (I used to receive a "morning wake-up call" nearly everyday from some company or another ... not exactly the way I want to wake up in the morning!). I don't believe I should be bombarded at home with phone calls from companies trying to get me to sign up for their credit card or buy something of which I have no interest. I never requested a call or information from their companies. If and when I want to buy something then I will seek out a company for information. These companies should not be able to "harrass" me with their persistent calls. Please do not move in a direction that would take away these recently new protections granted to us Hoosiers by our elected officials. I urge you to deny any attorney or company seeking to alter these Indiana privacy protections. Do what you must on the national level, but please leave Indiana's already existing rules on this issue in place.

Thank you!
